Volltext	Outreach counseling for young refugees supports and accompanies young refugees on their path to training, studies and work. The low-threshold service is aimed at all young people under the age of 25 who have experienced flight, regardless of their origin, residence status and previous professional and language skills. The aim is to refer young refugees to the needs-based services and support systems of the youth employment agency and thus to clarify and remove existing obstacles to taking up training, studies or employment subject to social insurance contributions. Socio-educational support and guidance is provided both on-site at the youth employment agency and off-site.
