Teaser	If you are temporarily unable to continue running your household due to illness or other circumstances and no other person in the household can take over, you can apply for help to continue running the household.
Volltext	If you are temporarily unable to continue running your household due to an emergency - be it because of illness, imprisonment, recuperation measures or even after a death - and no other person in the household can take over, you can apply for help to continue running the household from the social welfare provider responsible for you. You can receive this assistance if it is necessary and sensible to continue running the household. Assistance for the continuation of the household is a subordinate form of assistance. It is based on your income and assets. It is only granted if there is no priority assistance, such as care assistance in accordance with the seventh chapter of SGB XII, educational assistance in accordance with § 27 SGB VIII or health insurance benefits. Health insurance companies, for example, may pay for household help if a child under the age of 12 or a disabled child who is dependent on help lives in the household. Only if the health insurance benefits do not help or are not provided can the social welfare benefits come into play. As a rule, help with maintaining the household is only intended to provide temporary support. You can therefore only apply for it for a transitional period. This restriction does not apply if the assistance can avoid or
